"PRINCESS" WILCOX MAY BE ARRESTED SAYS J. A. MAGOON

MRS. ROBERT W. WILCOX.

MRS. THERESA WILCOX, who has figured prominently in the electioneering campaign of her husband, Robert W. Wilcox, delegate-elect to Congress, does not pay over to Attorney J. A. Magoon the sum of $100 by 2 o'clock Saturday afternoon, a warrant will be issued against her for obtaining money under false pretences, says Mr. Magoon.

Several months ago Mrs. Wilcox obtained possession of some valuable calabashes, the property of Messrs. McGuire and Kinney, two Hawaiians, who desired her to sell them.

The rightful owners have heard nothing of the calabashes or the money since then. They are valued at $100, or thereabouts. After repeated requests to have the money handed over, and obtaining nothing but refusals, the matter was placed in the hands of Mr. Magoon, who wrote her a letter May 28 demanding the amount due.

"Since the election, however, I have reiterated my demand upon her."
"I gave her notice that I would bring an action against her and would air the matter in court and let the judge decide whether she had obtained money under false pretences."

"This afternoon she promised through her attorney, Mr. De Bolt, that she would pay the amount by next Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock."

"I sent word back that I would give her until that hour to make the payment, otherwise I would have her arrested. I believe she will pay up rather than have the case brought into court."

Mrs. Quintus H. Berrey Writes in a Milwaukee Paper of the Islands.

Mr. and Mrs. Quintus H. Berrey of Honolulu, who are now on the Mainland, have been the recipients of much attention in the various cities they have visited. The Critic of Milwaukee, a weekly paper, publishes the following:

Mrs. Quintus H. Berrey, the wife of a prominent business man of Honolulu, Hawaiian Islands, and a leader in society in our new possessions, is a visitor in Milwaukee. Herself and husband were the first to throw open their luxurious home to our boys in blue during the hostilities in the far away Sandwich Islands when the gentle voices of mothers, sisters and sweethearts could not reach the ear, nor the tender hand soothe the fevered brow. There was one among the ladies of the Hawaiian capital who appreciated their wretched condition. While some of the soldiers were obliged to endure the rough treatment of army nurses, not a few were nursed as tenderly as they could have been at home. Her husband was equally attentive to them and is equally entitled to their gratitude. Mr.
Berrey is the manager of the Hawaiian Merchandise, Law and Financial Agency and is also Honolulu correspondent for Bradstreet's.

The Critic also has the following article signed by Mrs. Berrey: After a most eventful voyage from that rapidly growing Western city, Seattle, we arrived at Honolulu harbor, and, as we afterward learned, should have been thankful we were ever privileged to set foot on Mother Earth again, for the old miles was so unseasonably she now lies on the beach a total wreck, having broken down completely while steaming out of harbor on the return trip.

The climate of this far away land is mild and delightful—truly the Paradise of the Pacific—and we hardly realize that from which one is aroused with a start as a bracing, ozone-laden sea breeze en-folds one, awakening every nerve and atom, and behold a modern Hercules such vigor and energy were never felt before; you smile because others smile; you laugh because others laugh; care and worry are forgotten as though unknown, and a constant ebullition of mirth and merriment is heard on every side.

But ere long the cravings of the inner man assert themselves and our way is retraced to the hotel, which is quite like a large home, and every guest one of the family, and it is here that many interesting topics are exchanged from all corners of the globe.

The generously proportioned and ruddy captain, just in from the "Golden Gate," explains his comrade of years ago, now two days in from Hongkong: introductions follow and our host—"a jolly good soul is he," who seems to know every one—sets all at ease by serving at the head of the table in good New England style, addressing each one by name. After a most hearty dinner, we indulge in a quiet stroll to the palace grounds, where the Hawaiian band entertains the populace five evenings each week with a grand program, liberally interspersed with our national and patriotic airs, making us feel still more at home.

These evenings are always delightfully social, while simplicity, good humor and flowers in profusion pervade everything, a native custom in which many of the foreign born participate being the wearing of wreaths of flowers (leis) either around their shapely necks and shoulders, or artistically twisted about their heads, this very pleasing custom reminding us of our younger days at picnics and May pole parties in the States.

Honolulu differs widely from Chicago in at least one particular, it being a city of good roads; the drives to different parts of the island are excellent both for driving and bicycling, and in no other country are vehicles used so much as here. Every one rides in either their own or a livery carriage, and the natives will spend their last quarter for a ride of three squares rather than walk, and nothing surprised them quite as much as the marching and counter-marching of some of the United States troops that have had the pleasure of visiting this land of pol, which none of them will ever forget, as one and all were treated to the best in the land, and with an abundance that was astounding, the populace vieing with each other to serve the men.

The delightful drives in the evening through the palace grounds or public parks, the well-kept homes throughout the city with their tall sentinels of royal palms, or the banana groves with their ripening fruit, ever impress the visitor of cheerfulness, peace and plenty.

There are a number of very fine business blocks, also fine residences, churches and museums, a Masonic building and library.
